

Quadratic Mating Discontinuity

ADAM EPSTEIN

Mathematics Institute, University of Warwick, Coventry, CV47AL, United Kingdom

According to Milnor, the mating operation is interesting because it has none of the usual good properties. It is not injective, surjective, everywhere defined, or continuous. We give a survey of discontinuity mechanisms, with special attention to the quadratic case.